

Quick facts about Japanese Hair Straightening

Q: What is Japanese Style Hair Straightening

A: Japanese Hair Straightening is an innovative new technique from Japan to make frizzy, curly or wavy hair straight while preserving the hair's health. In the past, people were concerned that if they straightened their hair, they would damage it significantly, and this was true. It is not true any more. Hair can be straightened much more effectively with the Japanese techniques with much less damage to the hair.

Japanese Hair Straightening typically will improve the hair's feel, softness and shine while making it more manageable!

The Straightening is performed as follows:

- 1.

Assessing the hair type and condition.

2.

Washing the hair.

3.

Applying protein to the hair, if necessary for the particular customer and hair type. (small extra charge for this procedure, if you don't do this when necessary, you could end up with a less than satisfactory result, the stylist will tell you if this is necessary or not in your consultation).

4.

Applying Solution #1 (this cuts the hair's "Cystine Bonds" - the bonds that hold curl or wave patterns).

5.

Testing to see when the hair is ready to have Solution #1 rinsed out.

6.

Rinsing the hair.

7.

Eliminating some excess moisture in the hair (blow-drying to a certain point).

8.

Ironing the hair in extremely small sections with a special Japanese Straightening Iron that reaches temperatures of 180 degrees Celsius. Don't worry, this will not damage your hair unnecessarily.

9.

Applying Solution #2 to the hair after ironing is completed.

10.

Rinsing the hair and conditioning.

11.

Drying the hair and applying a flat iron to remove excess moisture if necessary.

Q: How long will the Hair Straightening last?

A: Treated hair will remain straight forever and will not become curly or wavy again. New growth that appears in the months following the Straightening will need to be Straightened again. New growth usually needs to be straightened 3 to 6 months after the initial straightening.
